Harry's Camper App Goes on Sale World Wide

COLOGNE, Germany - June 16, 2015 - The app market is an exciting place to be these days. No other area creates the amount of new ideas and opportunities to do things better and easier than before.

Harald Schlangmann, the author of Harry's LapTimer, the world wide best selling app for track enthusiasts, announced availability of his new app "Harry's Camper" today.

Available for iOS, Harry's Camper is the professional tool for all drivers of heavy vehicles, towing trailers, and campers utilizing motorhomes and caravans. It is focused on technical oriented drivers who want to know what is going on. It comes with a wealth of tools, calculations and displays all types of information elegantly and intuitively.

The leveling assistant makes it extremely convenient to level the caravan or motorhome. Leveling is measured using either the iPhone or a sensor installed into the trailer. The measurements of change for the hitch or the sides is given in inches / centimeters and displayed using an Apple Watch or using the phone itself. Leveling instructions are spoken.

While driving, the app provides the driver with insights on fuel consumption, vehicle load, and trip information. It does this in a smart way and is aware of levels and thresholds. It will warn the driver if anything is wrong. Besides using the sensors built into each smartphone, the app supports a huge set of external engine, GPS, and environmental sensors.

The road book included records trips automatically - even with the app in background. Other than common trackers, data is kept private and is stored on the phone only. For trips recorded, not only the route but daily distances, stations one stayed overnight and dates and other information is automatically derived. It can be viewed in the app itself or be exported to the Google Earth app and desktop program for detailed analysis and fly overs.

There is even more included, like rear view cam support, a weather station and checklists.

"We are testing the app extensively on a 7000 miles trip through Scandinavia right now" Harald says, "and we found it pretty useful both while driving and when arriving at the next camp ground. Probably the most valuable feature for family and friends is the automatic road book included. They love it to see where we are and how we are doing."
